ABSTRACT

This working paper is an annotated bibliography of published works on Puerto Ricans. The author uses a literature search to create this annotated bibliography. There are several areas that she chose to cover in her annotated bibliography, such as: historical, present day, migration patterns and population, poverty, social class, and social change, education, segregation, women, children, and families, mental health, assessment and the Puerto Rican child. These areas are covered comprehensively in her annotated bibliography and create a create starting point for any scholar focusing on the Puerto Rican experience.
