The Julian Samora Research Institute is the Midwest's premier policy research and outreach center to the Hispanic community. The Institute's mission includes:

Generation of a program of research and evaluation to examine the social, economic, educational, and political condition of Latino communities

Transmission of research findings to academic institutions, government officials, community leaders, and private sector executives through publications, public policy seminars, workshops, and private consultations

Provision of technical expertise and support to Latino communities in an effort to develop policy responses to local problems

A RESOURCE DIRECTORY: PRIVATE AND PUBLIC ORGANIZATIONS OFFERING SERVICES OF INTEREST TO THE HISPANIC COMMUNITY

Background

The Julian Samora Research Institute (JSRI) in conjunction with Michigan State University (MSU) Cooperative Extension conducted a survey of Hispanic Community Based Organizations (CBOs) during the summer of 1994.

The survey had several goals: 1) to identify and compile a list of community organizations offering services of interest to the Hispanic community of Michigan; 2) to assess the focus, scope, attributes, contributions and common concerns of these organizations; and 3) to collect information concerning current operating budgets and sources of funds.

Methodology

The survey was distributed to 442 CBOs that were identified by the office of the Director of Outreach at MSU Cooperative Extension, a statewide service entity. Of the 442 CBOs, 115 returned the survey forms, representing a response rate of 26 percent. Of the questionnaires returned, we noted that some were mixed "private" and "public" organizations.

For the purpose of this survey, a "CBO" is defined as "... an organization primarily devoted to 'not for profit' activities." The focus of this survey was on those oriented towards improving Michigan's Hispanic/Latino communities. The survey yielded several organizations which served diverse clienteles and had multi-dimensional programs and projects.

To the list of CBOs we also added a number of "private" organizations. By "private" we are referring to those in business "for profit." Thus, there is some heterogeneity in the range of CBOs included herein. We also point out the possibility of exclusion. The difficulty of directories such as this lies in the transiency of such organizations in terms of longevity, location, and funding. While fairly comprehensive of CBOs serving Hispanic communities in 1994, the Directory may have precluded CBOs established after 1994. Moreover, some CBOs may have terminated their operations since the survey. In order to keep this Directory current, we at the Julian Samora Research Institute request your assistance in updating us on organizations serving the Hispanic community. Contact information is included on the cover of this document and below.

How to Use This Directory

The Resource Directory is broken down into two components: 1) an alphabetical list of Private and Public Organizations by the service category that most accurately describes the main focus of the organization, based on information provided by the CBOs themselves, and 2) an alphabetical Directory of organizations offering services of interest to the Hispanic community of Michigan, including the name of a contact person, address, phone number, and a fax number when provided. Some organizations indicated more than one service category, but we limited inclusion of a complete description of their coalitions, challenges, needs and mission to only one service category listing. We are also including the Office Directory for MSU's Cooperative Extension Offices. By calling them you may be able to obtain additional information and assistance.

Again, we are well aware of the difficulty of maintaining current information in a directory of this type. We request your assistance in this regard, asking that you provide us with updates so that we can keep this Resource Directory as current as possible. Please contact: Juan Marinez, 208 Paolucci Building, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824, phone: (517) 353-9772, fax: (517) 482-1151; or the Julian Samora Research Institute, 112 Paolucci Building, Michigan State University, phone: (517) 432-1317, fax: (517) 432-2221.

Our plan is to have this Resource Directory and other reports from the survey on line within our Internet-gopher server. For Internet/web users, please try : Gopher Server <gopher://gopher.jsri.msu.edu/> and WWW Server <http://web.jsri.msu.edu/> . These services will also provide access to JSRI Newsletters, publications, other Internet information resources, and more.

Mission: The Agency's mission is to reduce the effect of poverty in Ottawa County by promoting self-sufficiency and economic independence.

Objectives: Community Action Agencies (CAA) have been organized to enable communities to address the barriers to self-sufficiency encountered by low-income citizens. CAAs promote advocacy efforts and provide programs of service sometimes using the support of volunteers as follows:

* Surplus USDA commodities (food items) are distributed bi-monthly throughout Ottawa County to assist families in need. Commodities reach over 1,000 households every other month with the help of community volunteers. Food items in the past have included: canned pork, canned vegetables, cornmeal, egg mix, flour, peanut butter, raisins, and rice. Food items and quantities vary from month to month.

* Funds are available throughout the year to meet emergency needs related to a loss of utility service.

* On a limited basis, funds have been available to help pay the first month's rent for homeless families in Ottawa County. Families are required to enroll in job training services and show an ability to manage household costs including rent.

* The Community Action Agency has a close relationship with a variety of human services agencies throughout the county. If an individual contacts CAA and requires additional or specific services not available in-house, referral to the appropriate agencies are made. A computerized information and referral system is used.

* Migrant farm workers and their families are assisted with food vouchers, shelter assistance, paper products and medical assistance not covered by Medicaid.

* The Weatherization Program provides free energy saving services to households all across the state. Licensed contractors inspect the home to determine what measures of energy conservation may be taken such as water heater treatment, low flow shower head, ceiling insulation, wall insulation, duct insulation, and floor insulation.

* CAA offers three Home Rehabilitation programs: the Community Home Improvement Program (CHIP), the Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RAP), and the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG). The Home Rehabilitation programs are designed to help with improvements necessary to meet HUD's Housing Quality Standards such as making energy improvements and creating handicap accessibility.

Goals: Our goals are to promote self-sufficiency by recognizing the needs of our community; to assist 14 households in securing permanent housing by providing the first month's rent; to provide food and non-perishable items for 100 migrant households; to weatherize 90 homes and provide extensive rehabilitation in 20 additional homes; to distribute food products bi-monthly (with over 1,000 households each distribution); and to continue utility services in 125 households through payment assistance.

P.O.W.E.R. Coalition.

Mission: Our mission is to serve the economically poor (with a particular emphasis on culturally diverse populations) of youth/young adults (ages 11-35) and families. Within its mission, LDI-D has the purpose of providing opportunities and means for these people to become self-responsible and self determining in their own lives for the sake of the children of the next generation, and to do so by: 1) developing a mission-driven attitude; 2) developing a partnership on diversity; 3) developing balance in relationships; and 4) developing responsibility for one's own future.

Goals: We have three main goals.

Our first goal is to have programs that balance fidelity to core values and expressed needs of those with and to whom we are sent.

We plan to achieve this goal by delivering and evaluating services that are consistent and credible with the mission in both the city and suburbs; developing programs and activities that are accessible to the economically poor; and by evaluating programs and internal operations to provide direction that is consistent with the mission.

Our second goal involves the promotion of the mission with proper funding to secure personnel and offer effective programs.

We plan to achieve this by increasing organizational visibility to enhance financial support in the Detroit area; developing long term funding sources that permit program growth as well as maintenance; and by developing a "Finance Task Force" to develop long term goals, objectives and strategies for a ten year financial plan of action.

Our third goal is to insure that we are adequately staffed to provide maximum effort in implementation of the mission.

We plan to achieve this goal by identifying, selecting, and training qualified staff and volunteers to ensure program effectiveness; by providing on-site monitoring and training to staff in field programs to insure quality program deliver; and by providing adequate resources to support staff and volunteers to ensure stability of program delivery.
